

Summary Notes
Demand Resources Group Meeting
April 19, 2006

Thank you for a very productive first meeting of the Demand Resources Group (DRG). In addition to establishing an overall scope of work and time schedule of deliverables, we were able to get through a good portion of our straw proposal of the rules for the Transition Period -- actually, we worked through all of the issues regarding Real-Time Demand Response, and a portion of the issues related to Other Demand Resources (ODR).

Two smaller working groups were formed to address specific issues raised in the meeting: (1) a load forecast working group (headed by Sandy Waldstein) to assemble questions that the group has related to the treatment of ODRs in the load forecasting process, and (2) a ODR definition working group (headed by Steve Cowell) to define the types of resources in the ODR category.

We will set aside some time in our next meeting, scheduled for May 3, 2006, to respond to the questions posed by Sandy's group, and the discuss the findings of Steve's group. We would also resume our discussion of the Transition Rules. We will circulate and post meeting materials a few days before that meeting. All meeting materials (past, present, and future) will be posted on the following web link:

http://www.iso-ne.com/committees/comm_wkgrps/othr/drg/index.html

Also, attached below is the list of persons and email addresses of those who have requested to be part of the DRG. Since several smaller working groups will be assembled over the course of our work, I am circulating this list to all persons on the list. Please note that this list is only to be used to conduct business related to the DRG.

Please note that the May 3, 2006 meeting of the Demand Response Working Group (DRWG) is cancelled -- note that the DRWG is a different group than the DRG.

My sincere apologies to those on the telephone -- there was a typo in the call-in number, which we discovered and corrected a few minutes into the meeting. We will do our best to keep that from happening in the future.

I look forward to a productive second meeting of the DRG.
