Subject: Operating Reserve Deficiency Information – Historical Data

In March of 2013, and again in May of 2014, ISO New England Inc. (the “ISO”) provided historical data on real-time reserve deficiencies indicated by the ISO’s dispatch and pricing system. This was done to support market participants’ efforts in assessing the impact of the ISO’s FCM Pay for Performance market design on the formulation of their De-list Bids or New Supply Offers. This memo and accompanying excel data file reflects an update, through April 2015, of that previously provided data.

Please note that the format of the updated information is slightly different from prior postings. This update covers only the period June 2012 through April 2015 and reflects actual real-time reserve deficiencies – simulated results are not included. Results for the period prior to June 2012 and simulated results may be found in previous information releases.

The README tab in the Excel data file provides additional information and precise definitions for all of the fields contained in the data set.

If you have any specific questions in relation to this data please contact Customer Support at the ISO through Ask ISO, by calling (413) 540-4220, or by email at custserv@iso-ne.com.
